"STUNTS" PROMISE NIGHT OF MIRTH

R.V.C. to Perform Tonight at Strathcona Hall

To-night, at 8.15, in Strathcona Hall, the S.C.A. will hold a "stunt" performance. These stunts, although primarily intended to be amusing and farcical, will include the enactment of such tragic gems as "Lord Ullian's Daughter," and "The Spanish Tragedy." That the element of love be not lacking, a realistic presentation of the love tale of Pocahontas, the Indian Princess, will be enacted. Several famous actresses will star in each and all of the stunts.

It is desired that an evening of genuine mirth and fun should be the result of the "stunt" night, and both in the way of costuming and acting, as well as in subject, no effort will be left undone to accomplish the desired result. The programme has been most carefully prepared by those in charge, with a view to best pleasing and entertaining the audience.

The small sum of twenty-five cents will be charged for admission. Home-made candy, made by the young ladies, will be sold during the evening.

The proceeds will be devoted to the fund for sending delegates to the Toronto Conference. It is hoped by those in charge that many will avail themselves of this opportunity of viewing dramatic talent of a high order, as well as spending an amusing evening.

DRAMATIC CONTEST AT SOCIETE FRANCAISE

The regular monthly meeting of the Societe Francaise will be held on Thursday afternoon at four o'clock. It will take the form of a dramatic entertainment. Four plays will be given by members of the different years, and a prize will be offered to the troupe which performs the best. The judges will be members of the Staff of the Department of Modern Languages.

After the dramatic performance tea will be served.

CERCLE FRANCAIS ENJOYED DEBATE

Dr. Brandt Delivered Inspiring Address on Happiness

The Cercle Francais had another successful meeting last night. There were about forty present, and the spirit that prevailed was of the best. There was a debate on the momentous question: "Resolved, that a city girl." Goldsmith and Gault, representing Commerce, spoke for the affirmative, while Martineau and Bourgois, representing Arts, upheld the negative. The speeches abounded in sound argument and good humour. As it was stated that there were no books on this subject, it was evident that the speakers must have had personal experience in the matter. All the speakers brought out most clearly the charms of city and country girls, as the case may be, and the second speaker of the negative was quite carried away in a flood of poetic sentiment. While the judges were away deliberating, several members expressed their opinions on the question. The judges awarded the decision to the negative on the ground of superior oratory.

The guest of the evening was Dr. Brandt. He delivered a most eloquent address on the means of acquiring and retaining happiness. He showed that to be happy is not necessary "to have" but "to be."

At the conclusion of Dr. Brandt's address, refreshments were served, and after these were done justice to, the meeting adjourned at 11 o'clock.

A young actor had been trying for a long time to get a speaking part. At last he was given one which consisted of four words. He was to rush on the stage and exclaim, "Hark, a pistol shot!" But during the play stage-fright overcame him at the critical moment, and as he rushed on the stage he shouted, "Hark, a pistol shot!" Then, "No, a pistol shot." At last he desperately cried out, "Say, did you hear that bang?" Short Stories.

DR. J. R. MOTT IN FAVOR OF WORLD UNITY

At McGill Canadian Club Yesterday

GOOD ATTENDANCE

Would Have More Citizens of the World

"The world is expectant and looks to the universities of the world for light in a dark and unparalleled period," said Dr. John R. Mott, Ph.D. (Cornell); hon. A.M. (Yale); hon. LL.D. (Edin. and Princeton); F.R.G.S., general secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation since 1895, in an address before the McGill Canadian Club yesterday afternoon in the Assembly Hall of the R.V.C.

Dr. Mott, who for many years has been a repeated visitor to nearly every country of the world, has had an enviable opportunity to study social, industrial, economic and religious conditions. Since the war his attention has been especially attracted to the relations of students in the Near East. His broad and clear insight into the international affairs has brought him into close proximity with members of all branches of modern society. Like many noted men, he realizes that a wave of pessimism has come over the world since the cessation of hostilities of the Great War. Intellectual people of every nation wonder what the future has in store in religion, politics, world peace, and the like. It was on these weighty subjects the guest of honour spoke. "I thought I saw unequalled suffering when I visited one prisoner's camp after another in Europe before the United States made her entry into the world-wide struggle. I thought I saw misery in all of its most deplorable forms among the warring peoples of Europe and Asia, but my recent travels in the same countries of Eastern Europe since 1918 have caused me to alter my opinion. More people have died during the past twelve months than in a similar war period when the casualty list was at its highest peak." People have been dying by the thousands from typhus and other diseases brought on by lack of food, clothing and proper bodily attentions.

"What will be the attitude of the outside world to these unfortunate and war-stricken nations? Bolshevism has attracted the kindly attention of all members of the Anglo-Saxon race. It has stood for some of those principles which the English have held dear and sacred. For this reason all Bolshevists are admired. These good principles play but a small part in their programme. Nineteen-twentieths of Bolshevism is a malignant disease and

ARTS INTER-CLASS DEBATE TODAY

Seniors Meet Freshmen in Serious Debate

The classes of Arts '23 and Arts '26 are meeting this afternoon at five o'clock, in Room 5 of the Arts building, for purposes of debate. The resolution reads as follows: "Resolved, that prohibition should be enforced in the Province of Quebec." Arts '26 are debating for the affirmative, and Arts '23 uphold the honours for the negative. The teams are composed of H. Wells and H. Freeman for the class of '23, while Arts '26 is represented by A. Newman and W. Shepherd. Both classes have accomplished a victory recently. Arts '23 defeated Commerce '23, and Arts '26 were victors over Commerce '25. Consequently, each aggregation is confident of success this afternoon, and the debate will positively be closely contested. Professor Latham will act as judge of debate, assisted by Davis and G. Nairn.

The other day Clare Burke was asked in a class in zoology what he knew about cells, and he said he didn't know very much about them because he had only been in two.

Mary had a little dog, Swallowed a pot of glue, And when the little puppies came 'Twas two—by two—by two.

APPLICATIONS RECEIVED FOR THE RHODES

Nine Out of Fifteen Applicants Are McGill Men

APPOINTMENT SOON

Selection Committee Will Decide Next Week

As the time draws near for the appointment of a Rhodes Scholar from the Province of Quebec, college rivalry becomes keen. Next week the decision of the Selection Committee will be made; in the meantime students in colleges and universities of this province are waiting with anticipation. To date nine of the fifteen applicants are McGill men, and it is the hope of many that the Red and White will have another representative at Oxford after this committee has chosen the candidate, who in its opinion is the best all-round student.

The honour to be considered the best balanced student from the largest and most populous province in Canada is indeed great.

It was learned yesterday that among the nine McGill men to apply for this coveted scholarship are:—

- Campbell Wadsworth, Arts '23.
- A. Rendle Stone, Arts '24.
- "Dave" Johnson, Arts '23.
- Duncan Anderson, Law '24.
- W. Rosenbaum, Med. '23.
- R. C. Harris, M.A.
- Syd. Pierce, B.A., Law '25.

Among those to apply for a similar Rhodes Scholarship in other provinces is Douglas Borden, of Science '24.

Any student may apply for this scholarship, provided that he is over 19 years of age and under 26, and is a British subject, a resident for at least six months within the province, and at least in his sophomore year. The qualifications taken into consideration are not merely academic. A man's powers as an athlete are taken into consideration, his ability as an organizer, and executive officer are all counting factors.

In the past many McGill graduates and undergraduates have carried off the right

NOMINATIONS FOR COUNCIL

Nominations for Faculty Representatives on the Students' Council are now in the hands of the secretary of the Council. The elections take place on the eighth of next month. It is the purpose of the "Daily" to publish the candidates' platforms and also to print their pictures in the paper; the early receipt of both will greatly facilitate matters, as well as assuring the men concerned of publicity. Each candidate nominated is therefore requested to hand into the "Daily" office, not later than Monday, December the fourth, his platform and a photograph of himself.

HAMMER NOT FAVOURED BY TRACK CLUB

Coach Van Wagner Explains Difficulty in Weight Event

JAVELIN THROW

220-Yard Hurdles Will Be Featured

Last night, in the Union, the McGill Track Club held a meeting at which a large number of the members were present. Several items of importance were attended to, and some given over to considerable discussion.

The first subject brought up was the advisability of substituting the javelin for the hammer event in the Intercollegiate meet. Coach Van Wagner was called upon to express his views, and he explained to the men the chief characteristics of the two events. Although the hammer throw has always taken a place on the programme of events at the principal intercollegiate meets, both in Canada and in the U.S.A., its popularity has been steadily decreasing until it is now faced with elimination.

Coach Van Wagner went on to point out that it requires a man of a particular build and strength to handle the hammer properly, and to attain anything like perfection requires an immense amount of practice. Naturally a college man cannot afford to devote such a lengthy period of time to mastering the hammer, and this is probably the chief reason for its unpopularity.

In speaking of the javelin the Coach said that as yet it had not received much attention, but nevertheless he hoped to interest a considerable number of men in its possibilities. Closing, he said that he would favour the substitution of the javelin for the hammer, but would prefer to let the change wait for a year, during which the javelin would be developed.

A vote was taken, and the members were unanimous for the proposer change. Accordingly the McGill Club's resolution will be brought to the attention of the other interested universities.

The second matter attended to, was that concerning the 220 yard hurdles. It was decided to feature this event in the University meet, and then confer with the C. I. T. U. as to the advisability of including it in the intercollegiate meet. The subject of walking races did not meet with much enthusiasm, and it was thought that McGill men would hardly turn out in sufficient numbers to warrant interest being taken in it.

The pictures of the track team are ready, and all men desirous of procuring same are urged to come forward at once.

The secretary wishes to bring to the attention of the track men that a considerable number of towels and a couple of track suits are still out, and he is anxious for them to be turned in at once.

ELECT OFFICERS IN RUGBY CLUB

English Ruggerites Plan for the Next Season

The following officers of the English Rugby Club were elected at a meeting which was held in the Union last night: Hon. Pres., Prof. Matthews; Pres., G. Wilson; Vice-Pres., McDonald; Secretary, N. Cooper; Captain, Marpole; Manager, Cleland; Representatives of the Maritimers, A. N. McLeod; of the Westerners, Brown, and of the Imperials, K. W. G. Patterson.

Owing to a late start this season it was found impossible to form a league of teams representing the East, West and United Kingdom, as was done so successfully two years ago; but it is hoped that by practicing from the beginning of the session this league will be revived, and the regular team improved in consequence.

Varsity defeated McGill at the Stadium this year, so in order to recover the intercollegiate laurels next year, plenty of opportunity will be given new men to earn a place on the team.

On behalf of the Montreal Club, Marpole, K. W. G. Patterson, Brown and Walter were thanked for their assistance and congratulated on their play at Halifax ten days ago, when they lost a hardly fought game to the Wanderers by 8-0.

A certain amount of kit belonging to the club has not yet been returned, so it is requested that the following return any they possess to Manager Budden in the basement of the Union, any evening this week between 5 and 5.15.

MONTREAL, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1922

THE MASK WEARERS

When we first opened our eyes and started to squall with all the might of our infant lungs, we did not realize that we were playing our first role in the drama of human life. But was this not the case? Shakespeare certainly was not very far from the absolute truth when he wrote:

"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players."

But how many of us are playing our true and natural parts? After a little consideration on this matter we have come to the conclusion that we are a nation of mask wearers, for as we look around us we see many men and women who have hidden their real selves under a mass of exterior falsehoods. Because of pride, conceit or ambition, they are going through life wearing false faces; acting parts that are not their own; often fooling the general public; and even at times unwittingly fooling themselves. However, the time for unmasking usually comes; the false faces are ripped off and the wearers are found to be veritable contradictions of appearances.

Here, for instance, is the prosperous-looking man, richly clothed, rolling along in a limousine and looking an example of perfect prosperity. His house is mortgaged to the hilt and bills for the four score and ten are unpaid. He is in fact the father of a family of mask wearers, for his sons and his daughters are acting wrong parts. They have all sacrificed their true selves upon the altar of social appearances.

There is the fop, with his ultra-fashionable clothes—violent tie, brilliant shirt and all other appendages. He anoints his hair with sweet (?) smelling ointment; cultivates an unnatural accent; carries a tooth-pick cane and thinks that he is a gentleman. He tries to hide his inappreciable insensibility under this exterior garb. The results of his efforts aren't worth a German mark in a St. James street pawn shop.

On the other hand there is the much-discussed female flapper, with her bobbed hair, her powder and paint, her lisp and her cigarette habit. Sometimes she is just what she seems—a brainless bit of femininity. More often, however (and this is very fortunate), she is a slave to style and fad. She eventually comes to her senses; acts her true part and shows the world that she possesses brains and the spirit of true womanhood.

There is also the case of the man with money who lives like the poorest beggar of the streets. He is as bad as the rest for he is flying false colours. He worships gold and instead of turning his wealth into useful channels, where it may bring good to himself and to others, he keeps it close within his fist. The day of reckoning comes and he passes out of earthly existence, unnoticed and unwept. It is merely the departure of another actor who played the wrong part in life, wearing the mask of deception.

And thus we could go on without end, citing parallel incidents and showing how many masqueraders there are around us and even among us. But what would be the use? The point is namely this: Let us try, as we act in this great drama, to play our true parts. Let us see that idiotic conventions and unnatural social barriers do not overcome our own true personalities. Let us, moreover, be frank and honest in our dealings with our fellow men, for deception is the cause of strife and hard-feeling.

The future may witness untold changes but today we are a nation of mask wearers. Can we ever become a nation of true actors?

EDITORIAL NOTE

The nominations for Faculty Representatives on the Students' Council, as received by the Secretary by six o'clock last evening, appear in this issue. There is only one acclamation, an extremely good sign for a series of closely contested elections, evidencing the interest that is being taken by the undergraduate body. The elections will be held upon the eighth of December, allowing ample time for a scrutiny of the candidates by the students and also for the conducting of active campaigns by the men nominated.

MANY PURCHASED INFORMAL TICKETS

That the Informal, which is to take place on Friday evening next, will prove one of the most brilliant and successful functions of its kind, seems to be assured if the enthusiasm and numbers of those who lined up in the lobby of the Union to purchase tickets can be taken as prophetic. Some time before one o'clock, the appointed hour of sale, little groups of prospective worshippers of Jazz began to assemble to make certain their ability to obtain the coveted paste-board, and when the wicket was finally opened a winding queue blocked up most of the available leeway in the lobby of the Union. Within a short time the limited supply of tickets was disposed of, with the exception of a very few which are still available.

Preparations for the affair have already been completed by the Union House Committee, and everything points to a very enjoyable dance. Music, as usual, will be dispensed by the well-known University Dance Orchestra, while refreshments of the same delicacy and variety will be supplied as at other Informals by the Union Cafeteria.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS PLANNING A SMOKER

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Newfoundland Club was held in Strathcona Hall at seven o'clock last night. The business of the meeting was to discuss the activities of the club for the present season.

It was decided to hold a smoker shortly in honor of the visit of Sir R. A. Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, and to have a social event every month during the winter.

C. Bell was elected to the office of chairman of the Social Committee, and W. Boyes to the office of vice-president left vacant by the resignation of J. O. Fraser.

All Newfoundlanders at McGill are asked to watch the columns of the Daily for further announcement regarding the smoker. This event will likely take place next week.

FURTHER BASEBALL GAMES SCHEDULED

Baron Byng High School Will Be Used

The interclass indoor baseball league will begin operations again on Thursday afternoon. The gymnasium of the Baron Byng High School on St. Urbain Street, near Fletcher's Field has been secured, and the remainder of the games will be played there. The floor is of a good size, and should be splendid for indoor ball.

The remainder of the second round will be as follows:—
Thursday, Nov. 30—Dent. '26 vs. Med. '25.
Friday, Dec. 1—Med. '28 vs. Dent. '25.
Monday, Dec. 4—Med. '26 vs. Law '24.

Upon the completion of these three games the schedule for the third round will be drawn and will be published in the "Daily" on Monday morning. It is hoped that there will be no further delay in the league; it is unfortunate that the delay should have occurred, but it was unavoidable. The Department of Physical Education has gone to a great deal of trouble in trying to find accommodation for the Indoor Baseball Club, a difficult thing to do, and finally succeeded in obtaining the floor at the Byng High School.

The hours for practice at Molson Hall are again available, and may be reserved by the class representatives on application to Mr. Van Wagner at Molson Hall. The hours free are as follows:—
Mondays—9 a.m. and 1 p.m.
Tuesdays—1 p.m. and 2 p.m.
Wednesdays—9 a.m. and 1 p.m.
Thursdays—1, 2 and 3 p.m.
Fridays—9 a.m. and 1 p.m.
Saturdays—12 noon and 1 p.m.

Immediately after the completion of the interclass league, the interfaculty league will begin. The faculty teams will be composed of the best players from the various class teams. One of the class representatives will be elected as faculty representative, and the work of managing and selecting the team will fall on him. These teams will play off for the college championship.

The City League will begin about the end of February, and there will be either two or three McGill teams entered in this league. It is expected that there will be a team entered from the Montreal General Hospital, composed of McGill graduates. This will make a very welcome addition to the league, which was made up of only four teams last season. In all probability there will also be a team entered from Westmount, engineered by "Doc" Ware and Doug. Dickie. With six teams there should be much more interest in this league during the coming year than there has been in the past year or so.

MRS. FARTHING "AT HOME" TODAY

Wife of Bishop Gives Tea for Students

Due to the impossibility of obtaining a complete record of all Anglican students attending the University, some of these may not have received invitations to attend Mrs. Farthing's "At Home" to be given this afternoon at Bishop's Court. However, Mrs. Farthing wishes it understood that all Anglican students will be most welcome, whether invitations have reached them or not.

The main purpose of the gathering is to give Anglican men attending McGill a chance to become acquainted with one another, and enable the out-of-town students to take an active interest in church affairs, while in Montreal.

The "At Home" is from four to six this afternoon, and will be held at Bishop's Court, 458 Union Avenue.

GLEE CLUB WILL BE HEARD SOON

First Concert Will Be Given on December 14

The Glee Club will give its first concert on Thursday, December 14th. This is the first public announcement of this fact, but nevertheless it has been well known by the members of this enthusiastic club for the last two months.

At the hour when the average student enjoys that most welcome little after-noon nap, the thirty odd members of the Glee Club have been turning out faithfully, twice a week, since the beginning of the season. It means hard work to come up to last year's standard; it has been achieved and there are many indications that it will even be surpassed. The Club, though very much alive, is still in its infancy, and precedents have still to be set. Realizing this, the work of the members has been in dead earnest and done with this conviction, that McGill, in this particular field, must not fail.

The concert is being given under the patronage of Sir Arthur Currie in the Convocation Hall at the R.V.C.

Tickets may be had from members of the Glee Club and also at the Union.

General admission, 85c; students, 55c.

THE DILETTANTE

HANDS OFF

An Open Letter From "The Dilettante" to Certain Members of the National Council of Women

Estimable Ladies:—

With very few exceptions the various women's organizations of this Dominion perform a unique and valuable service to the State. As everyone knows full well there are certain social phenomena which are best treated with a feminine touch. Since the recent complete emancipation of your sex bands of conscientious women in this country have wrought enormous and beneficial changes in the lot of the unmarried mother, of the released convict, of the sick and the maimed and the feeble-minded. Mere men have been seeking amelioration in these fields for centuries and they have merely blundered. You have at least achieved a measure of success.

But necessary reform, ladies, can so easily develop into fanaticism. Certain factors of the national life are within the scope of any institution organized for the social betterment of the people, certain others are as distinctly without these bounds. Literature is very much without, and yet some of your number were recently short-sighted enough to urge the adoption of a resolution calling upon the Dominion Government to establish a book-censorship.

Of course you are by no means the first to express such an opinion, an opinion based, it would seem, on a misconception of literature. The words of a certain McGill professor cannot be quoted too often. "Literature is not the prerogative of a bunch of long-haired men and short-haired women; it is the spontaneous expression of the whole race." Ladies, do you know what happens when you tamper with the liberty of popular expression? The two effects are somewhat similar.

We are quite able to understand that there are certain books which are not nice to read. We have even known certain people who were deeply shocked at certain rather crudely realistic passages to be found in the Old Testament. But these people were possessed of common sense and instead of inaugurating a campaign for the immediate suppression of these passages, they passed on, and revelled in the "Psalms" or the "Book of Job." That is the way to deal with literature. There are at present to the best of our knowledge no laws compelling any citizen to read any book, which he or she does not approve of. If one is shocked at the broad morals of a new novel one has merely to lay it aside. Leave obviously obscene publications to the Customs Officials; they will look after them, and in the meantime, hands off the noblest medium of human expression.

BOOKS ONE READS

MON ENCRIER

By Jules Fournier

Most English-Canadians have probably never heard of the late M. Jules Fournier, for at no time in the history of this country have the two predominating races made more than purely formal advance on the road to a common interest in their respective literatures. Yet this same Jules Fournier while yet a struggling journalist in his late twenties was brought to the attention of the French Academy as being by common accord the best French stylist among all the two millions of his fellow-countrymen. More than that Jules Fournier was that most invaluable handmaiden of any literature, most particularly a nascent one, a fearless and competent critic. Following upon his early death a few years ago his widow has just published two volumes of his selected essays. In "Mon Encrier" we get a comprehensive view of the real Jules Fournier.

The first volume is devoted in the main to articles of a political nature, and it is quite obvious that the author was not the sort of diluted patriot who confines his activity to indiscriminate flag-waving and the mere verbal encouragement of a literature. At an early age M. Fournier incurred the wrath of certain French-Canadian politicians of influence in this province. All politicians, as is well known, have far too much influence in this province. The battle waged fast and furious, but as the outcome of it all Fournier was sentenced to three months in the Quebec jail as a political offender. But Messieurs les ministres had not heard the last of their young journalist, for after his release he published a most delightful little work strongly reminiscent of Xavier de Maistre entitled "Mes Souvenirs de Prison," in which to point the proverb, that he laughs best who laughs last. I'd gladly spend three years in the Quebec jail if I thought I could write anything approaching "Mes Souvenirs de Prison" on my release.

However important his work as a critic of his countrymen's political morality or the lack of it, we must necessarily be more interested in Fournier the literary critic.

It has been said before that M. Fournier never allowed his appreciation of the best in literature to be blinded by his sentiments as an ardent nationalist. To the very end he never hesitated to declare that it was worse than fatuous to imagine that a few score productions of average talent could properly be elevated under the title of a French-Canadian literature. More than that he was never tired of dining into the naturally unwilling ears of his compatriots the mournful truth that no literature of any worth is likely to be produced among a people whose ability even to appreciate good literature is more or less nonexistent, and though M. Fournier was speaking here only to French-Canadians his remarks might be applied not inaptly throughout the whole field of Canadian literature. Would that there were more critics of the mould of Fournier to point out the straight and narrow path of artistic perseverance and perfection instead of acclaiming every succeeding emanation of the second-rate fiction-scribbler as the novel of the age.

M. Fournier was blessed with another gift so often lacking to the critic of the written word—a broad and humanistic foundation of literary knowledge. In the preface to "Mon Encrier" his life-long friend and co-worker, Olivier Asselin of the fighting twenty-second, pays tribute to the assiduity of his efforts to become more than a mere dabbler in the literature of France. The clarity of his diction and the precise manner in which he piles phrase upon phrase betray the fact that he had obviously more than a bowing acquaintance with the critical work of men like Faguet and Brunetiere.

Turn to whatever fragment you will in "Mon Encrier," whether it be a rather headstrong proclamation of nationalism or merely the quiet and dignified "execution" of a novel of inferior merit and you will find this invaluable combination of a man of courage and a man of letters, for it always requires courage to pour just the right amount of cold water down the backs of the herd at the crucial moment. Good Catholic though he is, even the church has no terrors for him, and he does not hesitate to admonish her when he considers that she stands in the way of the intellectual development of his people. In years to come French-Canadians may well look back upon Jules Fournier as the dauntless young progenitor of their school of criticism.

SUCCESS

By Lord Beaverbrook

The contents of this little volume are reprinted from a series of weekly articles written by Lord Beaverbrook for one of his London journals, and purpose to be at once an inspiration and a guide for the young man setting out to make his way in the world. The book consists of fourteen short essays on such subjects as Happiness, Luck, Moderation, Money, Courage, Failure, Calm, and other more or less related subjects. In reprinting these articles in a more permanent form the publishers appear to be actuated by the noblest idealism and the loftiest motives. In a short note at the beginning of the volume they express their confidence that "He who buys 'Success,' reads and digests its precepts, will find this inspiring volume a sure well-tonic. It will nerve him to be up and doing. It will put such spring and go into him that he will make a determined start on the road which, pursued with perseverance, leads onwards and upwards to the desired goal—SUCCESS."

It is not a pleasant thing to see the pious hopes of good men come to nought; and it was with some trepidation, we must confess, that we turned to the body of the book to see if such enthusiastic confidence was to be justified. We are afraid, however, that although the publishers have wished to provide a work that will be a guide, philosopher, and friend to Youth as he winds his weary way along the thorny road to Success, they have allowed the kindness of their intentions to run away with their common-sense. We do not venture to deny the altruistic motives of the publishers, but alas, the good are not always the clever, and the persons responsible for dragging these indifferently written bundles of platitudes from the kindly oblivion of a newspaper's files are certainly to be congratulated upon nothing but their good intentions.

By success, as one might have expected, Max Aiken means the amassing of the greatest amount of money that can be possibly squeezed from society, and the consequent ability to live upon the interest of this capital in idleness or in the pursuit of whatever is most pleasing to the successful pirate.

With the exception of a few original observations, which are either immoral or silly, the advice given is a repetition of age-old platitudes—the good old homely dope that the successful business man hands out when he tells you, with the air of having discovered a great new truth, that time is money. "Money," to quote from Beaverbrook, "the word has a magical sound." We can imagine the noble lord's eyes glistening as he pens that phrase, pausing perhaps to reach down into his trousers pocket and jingle the odd change about. How that sound must have pleased his noble ears! What music it must have been to him! And how refreshed he must have felt as he turned again to his manuscript! Yet it is not for its own sake, he hastens to tell us, that he loves money. He loves, in the first place, the stimulation and excitement of the struggle for its acquirement; and secondly, he knows that the possession of money means power. Success, money, power: these are his holy trinity.

It is strange, then, to learn from his pen that the three great secrets of happiness are "To do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly." In urging the unstrained quality of mercy, he states that the successful man "always knows that at some time in his career he, too, may need a merciful interpretation of a financial situation." This at least is written from the heart.

In another essay, however, we learn that "the battles of business are real duels on which realities of life and death and fortune or poverty and even of fame depend." Men fight with prophecies behind. The doing justly and the love of mercy seem to be forgotten here.

On the whole, we must conclude that the laudable hopes so ardently expressed in the Publishers' Note have not come within measurable distance of realization. The ideals held out by the author are certainly very far from being the highest; the maxims are platitudes; and the style is flat and uninspired. We would not recommend a friend to read it, and hope that no misguided person will attempt to take this volume as a guide to Success—or the other place.

NEIGHBOURS

By Robert Stead

A Canadian who knows something about his country is at a decided advantage in finding novel settings for stories. When he has the facile pen, and the keen sense of humour of Robert Stead, coupled with sound knowledge of the conditions surrounding his scenes and genuine sympathy for his characters, he must necessarily do good work.

Robert Stead was very much at home in "The Cowpuncher" and "The Homesteaders." Those two books, which have historical value as well as merit as fiction, have made their author well known in Canada. There may be a little of Ralph Connor in his work, but he is in no sense an imitator; his pictures of the West are convincing and original.

In "Neighbours," after he has got his characters started for the West, Mr. Stead is splendid. His story flows along with no interruption in the interest, with nothing artificial or forced to mar its simplicity.

But his first two chapters are lamentable. They attempt to portray the childhood of the men and women who, subsequently, form the leading characters of the story, and they do not ring true. It is unfortunate that so many authors see fit to attempt to portray child-life; only a few, such as Maud Diver, are ever really successful.

Once the four settlers, two young men and their sisters, get into a colonist car headed for Regina, the book becomes positively gripping. Even the happy ending fits in naturally. The character-drawing is faithful and pleasing, and there is no overdevelopment of any incident. Humour, both English and American, sticks out all over the last part of the book. "Jake," an old-timer on the prairies, furnishes the American fun by practical jokes; "Spoof," an Englishman, by his sly digs at his friends, and especially by the "howlers" he tries out on his father in England (such as shooting a "Chinook" to send the skin home to "the governor") makes himself dear to the heart of the reader.

The book is not sensational. "Neighbours" sets no big moral questions for solution, and makes no attempts at the erotic. Mr. Stead is a writer of charm; all his books are sane, clean and interesting. "Neighbours" while no great literary achievement, is a pleasing story.

PLAYS & THE LIKE

HIS MAJESTY'S

This week the house is dark at His Majesty's; a rather unusual phenomenon for the end of November. Next week Walter Hampden in "The Servant in the House," "A New Way to Pay Old Debts" and a selected Shakespearean repertoire. At last something for the disgruntled critic to fasten his fangs upon.

THEATRE PARISIEN

If the French as a race were possessed of the moral ultrafastidiousness so peculiar to our unfortunate Anglo-Saxons they would never have been able to produce such a vast number of extremely amusing light comedies. People with mid-Victorian opinions, however, had better keep away from the Parisien altogether, because they will probably have to spend three long hours in gazing severely down their nostrils in horror. As it is French comic playwrights seem to get an extraordinary number of harmlessly funny situations out of the least of the seven deadly sins.

"Les Bleus de l'Amour" has no outstanding points of its own. In fact, taking it all in all it is much less cleverly worked out than "La Dame de chez Maxime" and other pieces of a like nature. As usual the really attractive part of the performance is the acting. M. Monteil and Mlle. Dartois take a back seat this time to give an opportunity to some of the other members of the caste. Mlle. Djimmy, in her usual ingenue role, does some very good acting, and makes the very best use of a large and extremely comely pair of optics.

A very amusing performance on the whole. People who would rather have a good laugh than be edified will have nothing to complain of.

STUDENT VERSE

FROM A MOUNTAIN TOP

The deep woods are hushed; shadows are falling;
Down in the valley whippoorwills calling;
Last rays of light are brilliantly painting
The hills in the west.
High in the tree tops soft winds are blowing,
While night's pale lamp its dim light is throwing
Far down on the lake, peacefully sleeping
The world is at rest.

Dim shafts of light the far east are streaking;
Birds in the woods their throats are nigh breaking;
'Ald headed eagles silently soaring
High over the lake.
Down on the shores where white waves are leaping
Mists of the night are quickly retreating;
Nature welcomes the coming of morning—
The world is awake.
(Awhit.)

NOTES BY THE WAY

A recent issue of the Official Gazette contains the list of the judges appointed by the Provincial Government to award the $5,000 prize for the best novel written in either English or French by a citizen of the Province of Quebec. There is one solitary English name on the list of ten. No comment is necessary. Unsuccessful candidates for Bar Examinations will have little difficulty in getting the point.

When it was found that His Majesty's Theatre would be dark during the present week our highly-paid critic of the English Drama was asked to do a book review or so to keep his hand in. Picture to yourself the consternation when he replied that contrary to the precedent set by local newspapers a good dramatic critic was not necessarily even a competent judge of literature.

"The great American Novel," and "The World's greatest orator," two hyper-superlative epithets recently applied in print, the one to a very readable book by Mr. Sinclair Lewis and the other to a hard-working philanthropist with an undoubtedly magnetic personality. If the habit of using sickeningly unctious phrases like these continues much longer, the English language will cease to convey meaning.

In the traditional manner of our esteemed contemporary "Quips," we ask WHO were the sportively inclined gentlemen who discovered that the male choruses of the Russian Grand Opera Company provided such an excellent opportunity for playing Beaver.

ARTS SENIORS TO DELIVER PAPERS

Interesting Topics Before Historians Tonight

The civilization of the inhabitants of Mexico and Peru and that of the Iroquois will be the topics of the two papers to be read before the Historical Club this evening at the second regular meeting to be held at Strathcona Hall. At the opening meeting Prof. Waugh, of the History Department, addressed a large gathering of students, and since the applications for membership have been numerous, the club will have several vacancies.

The first paper will be given by C. H. Whitmore, of Arts '23, who has chosen for his subject the civilization of the Iroquois Indian. The second will be by C. Wadsworth, of the same year in Arts, and will deal with the Mexicans and the people of Peru. Refreshments will be served.

From a thrilling scene in a best seller: "You'll tell me," he said hoarsely. "But she gave him the horse laugh."

FISTS, FALLS & FOILS

Announcement was made yesterday afternoon that the Faculty boxing eliminations, which were scheduled for Friday night, were changed, and are to take place at Molson's Hall on Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

The contestants for these bouts will be announced to-morrow. Judging from the present entries, there should be some pretty love taps exchanged on Saturday.

Goldapple and Brodie, boxing in the 118 pound division, will stage their elimination contest to-morrow at 6 p.m.

Both of these sluggers are in excellent condition and have been training faithfully. Goldapple, of Pharmacy, fought extensively last year, while Brodie, of Medicine, was inter-scholastic champion in Ottawa. Plenty of fistic action will therefore be in order to-morrow.

Another mob of sluggers invaded the floor at Molson's Hall at yesterday's practice. The leather-pushers are bucking down to work, in preparation for the Faculty eliminations.

There is no admission charge for fistic enthusiasts who attend the bouts on Saturday. Such being the case, Molson's Hall should be crowded for the event.

Wrestling practice is announced for to-morrow afternoon at 5.15. Boxing and fencing practices take place at the same time.

As was suggested in these columns some time ago, the wrestling squad are badly in need of another mat, owing to the large turn-out this year. Coach Geo. Smith will verify this statement.

This is what Douglas Fairbanks in his book: "Laugh and Live," thinks about boxing:

A man who isn't afraid of physical his physique. Exercise—regular exercise—should be the first thing on his programme.

Fresh air, long walks, deep breathing, dumb bells, boxing, rowing, skating—and wholesome companionship day by day.

In the long run, boxing will become his most efficient exercise. When a man can take a blow between the eyes and come back for more, he has begun to fortify his own combativeness.

That is what he needs in life's battles—the nerve to come back for more after a slam on the jaw that would lay another man low.

A man who can steel himself to be knocked down and get up immediately afterwards and hand the other fellow a ripping punch, has added to his own "pep."

HOCKEY PROSPECTS FOR SCIENCE '25

Men of Last Year's Team Are Planning to Turn Out

The appointment of "Nuts" Nutting as manager of the Science '25 hockey team is the first development of the season in the inter-class activities on the ice. The second year team will be without doubt one of the most powerful delegations on the college rink this winter. With Smith, who starred in the game last year, and Moore, Burland and Gilmour out for the team, there is little room to doubt the success that they should have. Gilmour was the goal tender last year, and is certain to show improvement on the ice this season. Burland, who is a clever stick handler, as well as a fast skater, should catch a place on the forward line. It is rumored that Dingman, who starred in the interfaculty football, will be out and he will be a large addition to the defence of the team. Moore played last year, and if he is up to last year's form, the opposition will have a hard man to watch. Fairbanks will also be on the ice again. Last season he was without doubt the individual star of the team. Mace and Bourne are due to start the opposition with some of the fast work for which they are well known. Both these men have all kinds of speed, and can handle a stick with no mean ability.

Any men who are out to catch a place on the team should report to Nutting at once, as the probability of a practice in the near future is good.

NOTE OF APPRECIATION

TREATS IN STORE FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Two Opportunities Offered Tonight

Two concerts of interest to music lovers are to take place to-night, in which well known Montreal artists are to participate.

The first concert is one of a series of three "Recitals of Chamber Music" given by Mr. Brant of the McGill Conservatorium of Music, and Mr. Brewer, at Channing Hall, 7 Simpson Street, at 8.30 p.m.

The programme will be as follows:
1—Sonata: No. 1, A major—Mozart.
2—Sonata: No. 2, A major, Op. 100—Brahms.
3—Sonata—Leken.

The other concert will be to celebrate the re-opening of the organ, held in St. James Methodist Church at 8.15 p.m. There will be a recital by Mr. H. A. Fricke, the celebrated conductor of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir.

The soloists will be Madame Ella Sterling and Mr. Walter Clapperton—both well known singers in the old country, the latter being now associated with the McGill Conservatorium of Music. The following is the programme:—

- 1—Organ Chorale—Franck.
 - 2—Chant de May, Op. 53—Jougen.
 - 3—Toccata and Fugue, C. major—Bach.
 - 4—Vocal Solo by Madame Sterling—Mendelssohn.
 - 5—Selections—Debussy.
 - 6—Scherzo Symphonique—Miller.
 - 7—Vocal Solo: "It is Enough," Mendelssohn, by Mr. Clapperton.
 - 8—Minuet—Bach.
 - 9—Song of Sunshine—Hollins.
 - 10—Overture: "Egmont"—Beethoven.
- Freshman (passing a brewery)—What do they make in there besides beer?
Senior—Besides, my child? You mean instead of.

DR. J. R. MOTT IN FAVOR OF WORLD UNITY

(Continued from Page One) as such it should be treated by the rest of the world until it is properly cured. "Some people say that Europe is dead. It is not dead—it is sick, and with a sickness we should associate with suffering. When this suffering is over there is a future in store. New nations have sprung into life within the last few years and months; old ones have been reborn. What will be the future of these new States? "My admiration for England increases with leaps and bounds as I continue to find out the marvellous strides her governments have made to benefit the condition of the people of Africa," said the speaker. "People have said that China is changeable. China is changeable; in fact, it is the most changeable country in Asia. There is only one country in Europe which will compare with it in this respect. If you were asked what is the most changeable country in Europe you would probably agree with me and say, Russia. She is most plastic; she is dangerously plastic. "On one of my last stops in Russia I was talking with a Russian who has great confidence and trust in his homeland. He and I were discussing at length the rapid transformation which has swept over his part of the continent. Before I left him he said, 'You cannot understand Russia, but you can believe in Russia.' "In the present student bodies I think we must look to for help. It is a certain result of the war that people are not going to go back to the old-time frozen conventional ways. In the universities of the United States, Canada, Great Britain, France and other large countries are the coming leaders. If students the world over are brought together international conditions will be bettered. The World Federation of Colleges planted in forty countries with a membership of over a quarter of a million professors and students will, if supported more vigorously, help to solve the colossal problems gnawing at world peace today. It would tend to cement all citizens together, or to put it in Biblical terms, make them brothers. The programme of this world organization is one which will satisfy. It has principles—not rules. "To say that the world is expectant of some better and more stable future is true and is evident in all parts and among most people of today. A curious fact was impressed on me a few days ago, when I was crossing the Pacific; by a few days ago I mean last February when I was en route to Asia. Aboard the same vessel were a number of the Japanese delegation to the Washington Conference. In the course of a conversation with a Japanese Admiral, who was not a Christian, I was talking about the apparent unrest which seems prevalent in many quarters of the world. At the close of our talk the admiral turned to me and said: 'We must now turn to the leaders of religion for guidance.' Does this not appear a strange statement from one who is not a Christian? "Many of us go to church regularly every Sunday and stand to say, 'I believe in God the Father Almighty.' What is meant? Do they really believe in God or is it a mere conventional habit? It often is, but it shouldn't be. "Some time ago I was talking with Viscount Grey on international peace. To his opinion we want moral dominance in international affairs. Viscount Grey went on to explain what he meant by International Dominance. It means a proper place for Jesus in international relations. It is my firm belief that if this suggestion of Viscount Grey were carried out that more progress would be made at the Lausanne Convention now in progress. "If a person says that future world peace does not lie in Christian principles, then I should like to know in what it lies. If you had followed me through the homes of Mahometans you would not look to Mahometans for inspiration. It cannot come from Buddhism. "We should be able to think in terms of internationalism, and feel in terms of international feeling. We have heard a lot of the international mind, but not too much about it. In this respect the Germans and the French students are setting an example. During the past year several conferences have been held by students of these two nations. They have discussed methods of obtaining a permanent peace; discussed causes which brought about the late war and how similar wars can be avoided in the future. Englishmen are now joining in these conferences. "At the conclusion of the address, E. C. Amaron, president of the Arts Undergraduate Society, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by Cecil Teakle, president of Arts '24. The meeting was presided over by R. K. Jones, president of the McGill Canadian Club.

PLAYERS ARE TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Meeting Will Be Held at 5:15 Today Interest in the welfare of the Players Club has certainly been alive at McGill. Comments have appeared in the Daily, and hopes expressed as to its future activities. Although, in the past, the Players' Club has produced plays, many have expressed the opinion that its scope of activity has been very limited when compared with the large and highly successful clubs of a similar character at other universities. Perhaps no other student activity is so fraught with unexpected difficulties

MCGILL WAS DEFEATED BY M.A.A.A. REDS

Final Score was 7-1 in Favour of Visitors

AT "Y" TANK

Team Weakened by Absence of Players

The McGill intermediate polo team played the M.A.A.A. Reds at the "Y" tank last night, with a final score of 7-1 for M.A.A.A. The game was almost entirely one-sided, McGill fighting gamely from start to finish, but being weakened by the absence of Vickerson and Kyle they went down to defeat.

Up to half time M.A.A.A. had the best of play. The difference in the score hardly shows the difference in the play. M.A.A.A. appeared to be decidedly the faster aggregation, and had not much difficulty in carrying the ball to the McGill goal. From the first to last quarter McGill fought steadily, but unsuccessfully. The team made good plays, but did not seem strong enough to get away from M.A.A.A. Several good shots by McGill were blocked by the "Reds," who were continually with the ball.

An account of the game follows:

First Quarter McGill won the toss, and the game began with M.A.A.A. swimming the ball to the McGill goal, and after a scrimmage M.A.A.A. scored first goal. M.A.A.A. again brought ball down on toss in and after passing scored again. M.A.A.A. seemed to be off, and swimming away with game when they scored again. McGill had ball on swim off. M.A.A.A. shot from corner throw, but Forsyth stopped. Ball carried up to M.A.A.A. goal. Moore just missed on neat long shot. Another score by M.A.A.A. brought score to 4-0 at end of first quarter.

Second Quarter M.A.A.A. got ball on swim off. Ball passed to McGill and Moore tried back shot which missed. M.A.A.A. got ball and finally scored. Moore shot wild. McGill took ball back to M.A.A.A. goal. Moore blocked Murphy, and got fluke pass from Bethel, who scored for McGill. M.A.A.A. secured ball on toss in. Scrimmage followed. McGill tossed ball out of tank. M.A.A.A. had ball. Bethel passed to Murphy, but M.A.A.A. got ball. Half time whistle, but foul called just before whistle blew, and game continued for few minutes with no further score. Score at end of first period 5-1 for M.A.A.A.

Third Quarter McGill had ball on swim off, play in centre of tank. M.A.A.A. got ball, and black scored. On swim off Black shot, but Jardine stopped neatly. Scrimmage in front of McGill goal, and Jardine again saved, but M.A.A.A. finally scored. M.A.A.A. got ball, Cails shot. Jardine stopped. Black swam down with ball. Moore stalled, after which M.A.A.A. shot and Jardine stopped. End of third period. Score 7-1.

Fourth Quarter McGill held M.A.A.A., who did not score in this quarter. McGill obtained ball and shot wide. M.A.A.A. took ball down. Scrimmage and McGill went down, but failed to shoot. Then McGill got ball again, and Forsyth shot, but ball was blocked by McCormick. Corner for M.A.A.A. Cails shot. Jardine stopped. Murphy brought ball down, and there was scrimmage in front of McGill goal. M.A.A.A. shot. McGill stopped. McGill passed to M.A.A.A., who went down tank and missed shot. Phipps and Cails off for one minute. Play followed and whistle blew with final score of 7-1.

The line-up was as follows:

M.A.A.A.	Goal.	McGill.
McCormick	Defence.	Jardine
Rodgers	Defence.	Forsyth
Black	Centre.	Phipps
Charlton	Forwards.	Moore
Rae	Forwards.	Bethel
Cails	Forwards.	Murphy

to a three years' study at Oxford. Last year two graduates were added to the list in L. Armstrong, and R. L. LeMessurier, who was appointed from Newfoundland. Jack Farthing, appointed from McGill two years ago, has maintained the high standard. Latest reports from Oxford state he has been invited to join the Raleigh Club, which has a limited membership. This club affords many opportunities to those who are fortunate enough to be admitted.

This necessitates the closest co-operation not only between every individual member, each one of which has his or her own responsibilities, but also between the members collectively and some authoritative body.

Many questions, which affect the future of the Players' Club, will be thrashed out today at 5:15 p.m. in the reading room at Strathcona Hall. All interested are invited to attend.

JUVENILE EXTENSION COURSE ANNOUNCED

Commencing Friday, December 22nd, the Department of Physics will give to boys and girls between the ages of ten and fifteen, a series of four illustrated lectures and experimental demonstrations that should prove of very great interest. The lectures, with place and time, are as follows:—

- 1.—"Monkeys," by Prof. I. McL. Thompson, M.B., Ch.B. (Edin.), Macdonald Physics Building, Friday, Dec. 22nd, 4 p.m. & 8 p.m.
- 2.—"Stars," by Professor A. H. S. Gillson, M.A. (Cantab.), Macdonald Physics Building, Wednesday, Dec. 27, 4 p.m. & 8 p.m.

by Prof. N. N. Evans, M.A.Sc., Macdonald Chemistry Building, Friday, December 29th, 4 p.m. & 8 p.m.

4.—"Colour," by Prof. A. S. Eve, C.B.E., D.Sc. F.R.S., Macdonald Physics Building, Tuesday, Jan. 2nd, 4 p.m. & 8 p.m.

The lectures in the afternoon are for children only, but adults may attend those in the evening if they purchase tickets. The price of tickets for the course is $1.00. Separate tickets will not be sold. They may be obtained by applying to the Director, Macdonald Physics Building.

"Why knot?" said the shoe to the shoe lace.

"To hold your tongue," retorted the shoe lace.

CAMPAIGN PLANNED BY ANNUAL BOARD

Book Will Contain Much of Interest

A meeting of the Annual Board was held yesterday afternoon and several important matters discussed. The affairs of the board are progressing favourably. A subscription campaign was planned to begin today and the support of all students is solicited. It is especially brought to notice that only the number of Annuals subscribed for will be printed. The Annual this year will contain a complete record of one year's life at McGill. The advertising board have been fairly successful so far and everything points to a huge success. As in previous years the caution money, amounting to $3.75, may be signed off in purchasing an Annual. Students are requested to hand in their subscriptions as soon as possible.
